Drum duo preach respect on subway

Making noise.

Ab'shalom ben' Yisrael and Zu Naftali want to make your commute a little bit brighter.

It's 11:43 on a recent Friday morning, and the 4 train — free from rush-hour congestion — is flying downtown to 86th Street from 125th Street.

Ab'shalom ben' Yisrael, 40, and Zu Naftali, 36, bow their heads and say a prayer to the powers that be to keep them safe as they start a day of drumming on the trains.

By the time their fingers hit the drums — Yisrael's on the conga and Naftali's on the bongos — a woman has plugged her ears. Others have pulled out their earbuds and started recording the act on their phones. Some straphangers carry on conversations, a baby in a stroller still sleeps as the tones bounce off the Bombardier's train's walls. Pulling into the station, more riders clap than abstain, and few reach for their wallets.

If you've taken a ride on the 4 or 5 trains in the last six years, chances are you've seen Yisrael and Naftali, who perform as "Fresh 2 Life." They drum, rhyme and riff in an effort to inspire New Yorkers to be a little more kind to each other.

"Can I get a good afternoon?" Yisrael asks the train, in between automated announcements (Union Square is the next stop). "Instead of an 'excuse me,' how about a 'hey, how you doing, can I sit down?' We make things so hard for each other, and for one another, and then we wonder why we go through the things we go through. I don't have a lot of problems — I have 99 blessings, a problem ain't one ... 40 years old and I'm still doing backflips. I'm loving life. Can you say the same for yourselves? Why you ain't smiling then?"

By the time they take a break at Fulton Center to entertain a reporter's questions, energy is high — they're just getting started, and their buckets rattle with change and bills.

"We have a higher vibe than I want to take your money, I want to see you smile," Yisrael said. The pair play on the trains five or six times a week in between their jobs — Yisrael works a nine-to-five counting merchandise, and Naftali works overnight as a rigger. "We're not here to hustle anybody, people hustle every day and they get nowhere, because people hustle them right back."

Yisrael and Naftali, who are both native New Yorkers, met and started making music together about six years ago, when Yisrael said Naftali was making a sound on the drums he had been trying to perfect himself for a year. They both were looking for a partner to play with, and about six months later, "Fresh 2 Life was born."

They play on the trains, up to six days a week, anywhere from four to eight hours, depending on their energy.

"We try to incorporate civilization back into this civilization," Naftali said.

It doesn't always work — Naftali has had his glasses snatched off his face in an attempt to stop him from drumming. But more often than not they are the underground voices of reason, breaking up fights and arguments before they escalate.

As with any activity that is against MTA rules, they have gotten tickets for playing on the trains. But Fresh 2 Life said they've had some helpful advice from officers to avoid tickets. They know the conductors on the line. They even have a photo of them posing with NYPD Transit Chief Joseph Fox.

The MTA said in a statement they ask subway riders to adhere to the MTA's rules of conduct.

Fresh 2 Life take some above-ground gigs, but prefer a captive subterranean audience.

In May, the de Blasio administration started a pilot program called "It's Showtime NYC" that gives subway dancers an above-ground space to perform for crowds in hopes of avoiding their arrest or ticket for a summons.

"It's Showtime NYC aims to steer New Yorkers into opportunity instead of arrest while protecting public safety — and we're always looking for new ways to do so. As we evaluate its success, we will also explore ways to replicate that model," City Hall spokeswoman Amy Spitalnick said in an email when asked if the program might expand to include musicians.

Train dancers often face steeper punishments, such as reckless endangerment, as opposed to buskers who might be ticketed for blocking traffic or using amplified sound without a permit.

"New York used to be the greatest city in the world," Yisrael said. Now people come through and say, "Why does everyone look so mad? It's serious, and we're trying to change it ... I remember when people said hello to each other all the time, and when someone sneezed, everyone said bless you."

Tenants ask Buildings Dept. to save them from landlord harassment Complaints. City Council is committed to introduce a package of 12 bills designed to reform the department.

Tenant advocates and lawmakers want the city's Buildings Department to step up its work to protect tenants facing harassment from landlords.

A report released on Wednesday affirms a litany of complaints critics are lodging at the city agency, including slow and ineffective response to complaints about construction work that negatively affects tenants' health.

The report also said the Buildings Department fails to collect fines on landlords who accumulate violations that stack up over time and end up pushing residents out.

The Department of Buildings did not respond to multiple requests for comment by Metro.

In front of City Hall, Lower East side resident Rob Pinter told reporters the landlord of his building displaced most of the 17 rent-regulated tenants before he began renovations in 2013.

They haven't ended, said Pinter, who accused the landlord of allowing jackhammering of the unit above his.

"This led to a ceiling collapse and the release of clouds of toxic dust into my apartment," he said, adding he has since been diagnosed with bronchial asthma.

Public online records showed the building Pinter lives on Eighth Street has received 17 complaints since June 2013, all of which were classified as resolved.

The only open violation listed online refers to a cracked wall in the basement. Four other violations since March 2013 were dismissed.

Bolstered by the report, at least 11 City Council members have signed on to a series of bills designed to reform the Buildings Department.

cupants and forcing tenants to live amid a gut renovation," said Manhattan City Councilwoman Helen Rosenthal in a statement.

"Until DOB finds a solution to check every landlord's claims of 'no occupancy,' it remains complicit in the harassment that landlords inflict on tenants," Rosenthal added.

The report, by coalition group Stand for Tenant Safety and the Urban Justice Center, comes two days after Mayor Bill de Blasio announced $12.3 million in city money would be directed toward free legal services for tenants facing eviction and displacement by landlords.

Zadroga Act for 9/11 responders, survivors expired at midnight

No response.

Leaders in the House and Senate are mum on when either will vote to reauthorize aid for those still recovering from the terrorist attacks.

The federal fund designed to help Sept. 11 first responders and survivors pay for health care costs expired Wednesday.

Despite insistent pressure by New York lawmakers and local celebrities including Jon Stewart, Congress missed the deadline to renew the James Zadroga 9/11 Health and Compensation Act.

The $1.6 billion health care program serves some 70,000 residents across New York and New Jersey who worked, lived or responded to the World Trade Center after the terrorist attacks in 2001.

Enough money is left from the previous, equally contested authorization in 2011 to pay for care for another year, but lawmakers from both states have been pushing in both the House and Senate to authorize a more permanent solution.

"Fourteen years ago, we gathered on the steps of the Capitol and vowed to never forget. We must not walk away," read an open letter by New York Reps. Carolyn Maloney, Jerrold Nadler and Peter King in The Hill.

Neither House nor Senate leaders have publicly announced when a bill to reauthorize would be up for a vote.

On Wednesday, local leaders called on Congress to act sooner rather than later.

12 infected

One dead in Bronx's latest Legionnaires' outbreak

New York City officials confirmed Wednesday that one person died as a result of the latest cluster of Legionnaires' disease identified in the Bronx.

The current number of infected New Yorkers stands at 12, up from the seven the city originally announced on Monday.

The previous outbreak in the South Bronx claimed the lives of 12 Bronxites.

City officials said the current outbreak is concentrated with residents and visitors to Morris Park. Eleven people remain under watch in area hospitals. One patient has been discharged, the health department said.

Congress averts shutdown of the government

Funding measure sent to Obama. He will sign a stopgap funding measure approved by Congress.

The U.S. Capitol in Washington, D.C. / GETTY IMAGES

Ending weeks of infighting, Congress on Wednesday voted to avert a government shutdown just hours before a midnight deadline, passing a stopgap measure to extend funding for federal agencies until Dec. 11.

The House of Representatives relied heavily on Democrats to secure passage in a 277 to 151 vote. A large majority of Republicans voted against the measure, which did not meet conservatives' demands to cut off money to women's health care provider Planned Parenthood amid an abortion controversy.

The House also passed a companion bill aimed at restoring the Planned Parenthood defunding provision, but the Senate is not expected to act on it, effectively killing it.

The spending extension now moves to President Barack Obama to be signed into law.

Obama welcomed the news with a tinge of sarcasm in remarks to a group of progressive state legislators in Washington.

"The good news is that it looks like the Republicans will just barely avoid shutting down the government for the second time in two years. That's a somewhat low bar but we should celebrate where we can," Obama said.

"The bad news is that it looks like Republicans will just barely avoid shutting down the government again for the second time in two years," he added.

The controversy over Planned Parenthood funding threatened a repeat of a 17-day shutdown in October 2013 that was prompted by Republican demands to deny federal funding for Obama's health care law, the Affordable Care Act.

House conservatives, cheered on by some Senate colleagues, had insisted that Planned Parenthood be punished for allegedly improperly selling fetal tissue harvested from abortions. The organization has denied the allegations.

But the debate shifted dramatically last week when House Speaker John Boehner announced his resignation and said he would put the Senate's "clean" funding bill to a vote.

The funding extension aims to give congressional negotiators and President Barack Obama about 10 weeks to work out a longer-term budget deal and ease automatic spending constraints on military and domestic spending. Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell has said he would like to reach a deal with Democrats that sets funding levels for two fiscal years, through Sept. 30, 2017. REUTERS

Prosecutors. Caitlyn Jenner will not be charged in fatal car crash

Former Olympian and reality TV star Caitlyn Jenner will not be charged in connection with a crash in Malibu earlier this year that killed a 69-year-old woman, Los Angeles prosecutors said on Wednesday.

Based on the facts in the case, prosecutors lacked evidence beyond a reasonable doubt that Jenner's conduct was unreasonable, according to documents provided by the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office.

Jenner, 65, was driving a Cadillac Escalade along Pacific Coast Highway and towing a trailer carrying a dune buggy when she slammed into two other cars, according to authorities.

During the crash, a white Lexus being driven by 69-year-old Kim Howe was shoved by Jenner's sport utility vehicle across a center divider and into oncoming traffic, where it was struck head-on by a Hummer.

Howe was killed in the collision and Jessica Steindorff, who was driving a black Toyota Prius also rear-ended by Jenner, was injured.

Caitlyn Jenner / GETTY IMAGES

Jenner escaped serious injury in the crash and declined medical treatment, authorities said at the time.

Civil cases typically require a lesser burden of proof than criminal courts. A spokeswoman for Howe's attorney could not immediately be reached following the district attorney's decision on Wednesday.

Bruce Jenner was known to younger generations as the patriarch of reality TV's Kardashian clan before announcing in a nationally televised interview in April that he is transgender.

Caitlyn Jenner is now the star of her own reality TV show, "I Am Cait," centered on her transition.

REUTERS

The accident

Details according to a summary of the investigation released by the district attorney's office:

- Jenner was driving slightly below the speed limit and "minimally slower than the victim" and braked 1.9 to 1.5 seconds before the collision.

- The only possible violation against Jenner would be a "violation of the basic speed law," meaning too fast for the conditions.

- Prosecutors said that "crime also requires ordinary negligence. Based on facts, cannot prove beyond a reasonable doubt that suspect's conduct was unreasonable."

- Reasonable doubt is the standard required in California, and in most U.S. courts, to prove a defendant guilty of a crime. Both Steindorff and Howe's family have sued Jenner.

Shoulder Arthritis Treatments Keeping Boomers Active Into Their 60's, 70's Even 80's?

If you suffer with painful shoulder arthritis — science may have finally found the answer you've been looking for.

Here is why: Researchers have discovered a natural gel like medicine that is like "joint oil." This all-natural gel is one of the naturally occurring lubricating substances in your shoulder joint that cushions and lubricates the joint which dries out over time due to wear-and-tear, age or injury. But when doctors precisely place this lubricating gel into your shoulder joint by using advanced digital imaging technology — it is like putting oil on a rusty door hinge. It lubricates the joint and can decrease pain and stiffness. For some, results can be dramatic and last for months. Years for some. Often times shoulder surgery can be avoided.

Know this: This is NOT a supplement you can buy over the counter or on the internet. This is a REAL medical treatment that must be given by a trained health care professional.

And the great news is: There is a free report and information kit available that tells you everything you need to know about this treatment. It also tells you all about cutting-edge medical clinics right here in New York City that are offering this cutting-edge treatment with tremendous success.

To get your information kit or to schedule a No-Obligation Risk Free Shoulder Screening simply call 800-627-PAIN (7246).

Pope secretly met Kentucky clerk in gay marriage row

A Kentucky county clerk who had been jailed for refusing to issue marriage licenses to gay couples secretly met Pope Francis during his visit to the United States last week, a meeting she called greatly encouraging.

The Vatican confirmed the pope's meeting in a brief statement on Wednesday.

Rowan County Clerk Kim Davis and her husband met the pope during the Washington leg of his U.S. visit, she and her lawyer told American media.

With the issue of same-sex marriage dividing Americans, the pope's meeting with Davis and Francis' comments on Monday may further embolden local officials across the United States who have said they will not issue marriage licenses to gay couples.

In Texas, Alabama and elsewhere a number of clerks and judges who stated their opposition to gay marriage have thrown up roadblocks to the unions.

Davis' attorney, Mat Staver, told CBS News, "The fact that [the pope] met with Kim Davis sends a message that he is someone who stands with those individuals who are standing up for their religious convictions, that religious freedom is a worldwide message that the pope wants to convey."

South Dakota principal wounded in high school shooting

The principal of a South Dakota high school was wounded by a gunshot on Wednesday and a student was taken into custody, according to officials and media reports.

The gunshot victim was in stable condition, Lincoln County State's Attorney Tom Wollman said.

Reuters was not immediately able to confirm local media reports that the injured person was the principal of Harrisburg High School, south of Sioux Falls.

The shooter, a student, was subdued by staff and was taken into custody, Wollman said. REUTERS

Joaquin strengthens into hurricane

Joaquin strengthened into the third hurricane of the 2015 Atlantic season on Wednesday, the U.S. National Hurricane Center said, although forecast models did not agree on whether the storm will make landfall in the United States.

Joaquin strengthened from a tropical storm into a Category 1 hurricane with maximum sustained winds of 80 miles per hour and was located about 215 miles east-northeast of the central Bahamas, the center said. REUTERS

Officer dead in shooting at suburban S.C. mall

A South Carolina police officer was fatally shot at a mall on Wednesday after a struggle with a knife-wielding gunman.

Officer Greg Alia of the Forest Acres Police Department died after responding with other officers to a call about a suspicious person, Police Chief Gene Sealy told reporters.

A suspect, identified as Jarvis Hall, ran from the officers into the mall, Sealy said. Alia caught up with him and was shot during an ensuing struggle.

Hall, who was armed with a handgun and knife, was taken into custody, the police chief said.

He is expected to be charged with one count of murder and two counts of attempted murder, said Lieutenant Curtis Wilson, a spokesman for the Richland County Sheriff's Department. REUTERS

Gissendaner was sentenced to death after being convicted of what is known in the state as malice murder for her role in plotting the killing of her husband, Douglas, in 1997. REUTERS

Ben Affleck is over his nanny phase

K thanks bye. / ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

They said it was just a phase, and apparently they were right. Ben Affleck has reportedly called off his post-divorce dalliance with his and Jennifer Garner's former nanny, Christine Ouzounian — to the rejoicing of spell-checkers everywhere. "He cut ties with her recently," a source tells Life & Style. "He told Christine he couldn't handle another relationship when things were still so painful and raw between him and Jen." Sure, that. And maybe also because you shouldn't date the nanny? I mean, I understand the siren song of convenience and all, but come on. "He had fun with [her], but it wasn't love," the source adds, wistfully.

THE WORD

Vertigo-stricken Brian Austin Green wants alimony from Megan Fox

Poor Brian Austin Green. Not only is he going through a divorce — amicable or not — from Megan Fox, but now everyone gets to see the documents showing him asking her for spousal support. TMZ got its hands on this week's filing, in which Green valiantly checked the "spousal or domestic partner support" box, indicating that Fox is the bigger earner of the two. Which makes sense, because Green has apparently been battling vertigo and not working much since he and Fox were in a car accident last December. Bummer, man.

He does look a little woozy.

So much for Amanda Seyfried and Justin Long

Amanda Seyfried has apparently kicked boyfriend Justin Long to the curb after two years of dating, according to Us Weekly. "It happened a few weeks ago," a source explains. "He's really heartbroken." Earlier this year in an interview with Vogue, Seyfried revealed how she initially fell for Long — on Instagram, if you can believe it — and hinted that things might not be working out so well. "I thought something he said was really funny. It was a beautiful picture of a snail, and the caption said, 'F—ing MOOOOOOOOVE.' It made me laugh out loud, Fun while it lasted?

so I texted him," she explained. But: "Making movies is two solid months of 12-, 14-hour days. I mean, it can ruin your relationship." Apparently she wasn't just talking hypothetically.

George R.R. Martin confirms 'Game of Thrones' movie

The "Game of Thrones" folks are planning to make the jump to the big screen after their HBO run is wrapped up, author George R.R. Martin confirms to the Daily Star. "There will be a movie, but I will not be involved. I have too much to do. That is something HBO and [the show's writers] are dealing with," Martin explains. "I have two more books to finish." An anonymous source on the hit series' production staff says the movie could even feature some beloved but long-dead characters. "With the 'Game Of Thrones' universe there is much rich material and no constraints on when that story will take place," the source says. "They are looking at dipping back in time during certain periods of the series, which could be examined as a one-off plot. That means that some of the big characters who fans have seen die on screen could be resurrected, such as Robb Stark, Catelyn Stark, Oberyn Martell — and Ned Stark." This, I can get behind.

Twitter feed

Today, Ricky Gervais is rolling with the punches, Evan Rachel Wood is uncomfortable at work, Emma Bunton is knackered, Mark Duplass has a theory and Bette Midler is unimpressed.

@rickygervais: Twitter: the only place where you can be insulted by an egg with no friends.

@evanrachelwood: Too much food... corset...too tight.

@EmmaBunton: I want to go back to bed!!! Not a lot of sleep in 3 days.

@MarkDuplass: I think Oates might hate Hall.

@BetteMidler: They found water on Mars? Big deal. Call me when they find gin.

An ensemble man takes center stage

Interview. Ken Jeong is finally ready for his close-up on the new sitcom "Dr. Ken."

Even if you don't know his name, chances are you've seen Ken Jeong in something. He originally popped up as a very brusque doctor in "Knocked Up," but has since appeared in a number of comedy hits over the years, from the

"Hangover" movies to "Community." Now, he's finally getting a chance to do his own thing on "Dr. Ken," a sitcom loosely based on his life. He stars as an irritable doctor struggling with how to be a good parent to his kids.

Having been in big ensembles, how does it feel to go solo?

I'm just so grateful. You can tell, here, it really is a great ensemble. Though my name is in the title, I think of this as an ensemble-driven show. It really is, because, you know, being on "Community" for six years, all the projects I've done have been ensemble-driven. "Knocked Up," "The Hangover," all of them, it's never been about one person. "Community" especially. That's pretty deeply rooted in my DNA. So really as the show evolves, to me, it's really more about the ensemble.

"Dr. Ken" premieres Friday at 8:30 p.m. on ABC. / DANNY FELD

How much of your real life is in the show?

Everything comes from a place of reality and is always fictionalized for effect. There are definite episode ideas I have that have come from a real place, from a real point in my life, from my career in medicine, and then it is organically massaged into something that's comedic or something that's usable as a runner or a story. That's been the fun part of it. There's really cool stuff that you wouldn't know, watching the final product, it emanated from that. This is easily the most grounded character I've ever had because it's based on me.

Is it hard to transition from the oddballs you've played in the past to more of a straight man?

It's great that the public can accept me for my outsidiness, like on "Commnity" and "The Hangover." It's actually easier, in my opinion, to transition to the straight-man foil than most people think. It's sometimes harder if you're used to playing the straight person and the public so identifies you with that — then, if you're doing something remotely crazy, that can be jarring.

LISA WEIDENFELD
@LisaWeidenfeld
lisa.weidenfeld@metro.us

One more thing

Co-star

Suzy Nakamura stars as Jeong's wife, Allison, who's a psychiatrist. We asked her what it's like to play someone based on the real thing.

Are you learning about more psychiatry now? I'm going to do my best. But I love that my character feels that she has a one up on Ken because she understands his psyche. His wife in real life, Tran, is a big inspiration to me because she's very calm and she does ground him. I loosely based my character off her energy.

LET YOUR GEEK FLAG

I just got back from my 13th comic book convention of the year, and it's not my last before December 31. If I had a dollar for every Deadpool costume I've seen this year, I'd be able to buy all the remote control BB-8s! You may have heard me complaining about cons online: eating nothing but pizza for three days or how I've outwalked my step counter. But with the exception of San Diego Comic-Con, which has frankly gotten too big for the space it's in, you'll never hear me say I hate them.

This time around, it was the Nashville Wizard World, where I got to moderate a bunch of panels, including the "Dukes of Hazzard," "Firefly" and "CHiPs" reunions, as well as ones for Danny Trejo and Candice Patton from "The Flash." It's really hard to beat talking to these amazing people, but that's not the thing that makes me love them. It's the absolute love of every permutation of nerd culture and everyone who shares in it.

It sounds like a given, but there were some amazing moments that you'd find in very few other places. I watched a woman burst into applause when we talked about her favorite female character on a panel and how things are changing for the industry. She got choked up when we talked about it afterward. I saw a 4-year-old kid who just discovered "CHiPs" squeal in happiness after taking over the panel with his motorcycle questions. I watched a Make-A-Wish kid absolutely beam with joy when he got a hug from the "Dukes of Hazzard" cast.

Welcome to Nashville's Wizard World! / PROVIDED

Sure, those shows may be long since over. They may not be technically "geek," but that's the thing about this world: If you love it, you can find people who love it right along with you.

I heard a girl tell her friend all about classic "Doctor Who" and completely persuade her to watch. I saw a dad explaining the parts of a broken Millennium Falcon toy at a booth to his tiny son dressed as Han Solo. I was there when a sea of people with Jayne Cobb hats (including one very cute baby) got up onstage to take pictures with Adam Baldwin and Jewel Staite after the panel. I had yet another little boy tell me he didn't buy the Avengers set because Black Widow

Aries Love is in a high cycle. A social or cultural event will give you a chance to meet compatible personal or professional partners.

Taurus Someone from your past will cause you to rethink a situation. If you have strayed too far from your intended target, consider setting a new goal.

Gemini If emotions are running high, rethink your position. Shopping or visiting a friend will help you put your situation into proper perspective.

Cancer Lending or borrowing money or possessions is discouraged. Take a closer look at your bank account. Keep some funds in reserve.

Leo Make the most of your good will and offer your services to a charitable organization. Your charm will encourage people to join your cause.

Virgo You may feel like pampering yourself, but remember that overindulgence or overspending will put you at a disadvantage.

Libra You'll find inspiration if you travel. Visiting new places and exploring various philosophies and cultures will spark a creative concept.

Scorpio Financial gains are possible if you are proactive. Go over contracts carefully. Property deals should be considered as a source of extra income.

Sagittarius You will end up in an awkward position if someone you care about feels stifled. Trying to win every discussion will not lead to happiness.

Capricorn Take it easy. You need rest and relaxation if you want to be at your best. Some quality downtime will help you regroup.

Aquarius You will be the star of the show. Others will be drawn to your sense of humor. When possible, include younger family members in your plans.

Pisces You will be resentful if a family member is being secretive. You should initiate an honest dialogue without being critical. EUGENIA LAST

Aces & Operatives: Spy 101

Oct. 10, 8-11 p.m.
Grotta Azzurra
$35-$50

Nobody else is Tom Cruise-hanging-off-a-plane-during-takeoff ambitious, but you probably already have some spy skills if you've ever gamed a "Choose Your Own Adventure" book. Hone your CIA application at this spy school that plunges you into a command center to complete missions in various departments. There's even a real mole among you to test your skills. Graduate, and you'll be named a special agent. Next stop, "The X-Files"?

Blade Rave

Oct. 9, 7:30-11 p.m.
Terminal 5
$56

After "Twilight" and "The Vampire Diaries," the blood-sucking genre could use a little of the late-'90s grit of "Blade." Enter event masters BBQ Films, who have lined up everything short of Wesley Snipes to put you in the movie's world with an old-school rave featuring dancers, sword-fighting and roving vamps from Poisonous Pinups. But what you're really there for is the (synthetic) blood rain as The Crystal Method reprograms your pulse with thumping beats.

Uptown Showdown

Oct. 8, 8-9:30 p.m.
Symphony Space

The boundaries between heroes and villains have blurred to the point that, somehow, Heath Ledger's Joker came out as the sympathetic one in "The Dark Knight." So who are we rooting for, anyway? Debaters will include Janeane Garofalo, an "I Love Superman" alum from Upright Citizens Brigade and a "Daily Show" writer, plus lots of audience participation so arrive prepared; knowing your history is just as important here as your grand unified theory of why Hollywood can't make a good Superman film anymore.

Draw-Mania!

Oct. 6, 9-10:45 p.m.
Oct. 10, 7-8:45 p.m.
DiMenna Center

Superheroes may be capable of fantastic things, but they're all modeled on real people (even the Hulk!). Try figure drawing for yourself at these sessions, where "interestingly costumed" models pose for anywhere between 30 seconds and 20 minutes. The classes are BYO paper and materials, so bring anything from charcoal to watercolors, and try keeping one foot in the real world while letting your creativity inspire what ends up on the page.

Treats to feel like autumn has arrived

It may be more muggy than crisp, but fall is officially on the calendar, and we've waited long enough for its delicious treats. Here's where to find some of the best in the city.

The West Village is home to the epitome of autumn beverages. Distilled (211 West Broadway) brings back the vibe of the city's bygone social neighborhood hubs. Their Spiced Pumpkin Cider throws together crisp apple cider with pumpkin spices and puree, not to mention a hit of Brugal 1888 rum and a creamy whipped cream topping strewn with grated nutmeg. It's even served in an "I Love NY" mug!

Doughnuts from a food truck arrive hot and fresh, exactly when they taste best. Track down Carpe Donut on Twitter for their apple cider treats. Order a cup of hot apple cider to sip along with it and hope that sweater weather arrives soon.

We'll happily eat our way right out of our beach bodies with the Maple Bourbon Walnut Pie from The Blue Stove (415 Graham Ave., Brooklyn).

Nolita's swanky all-day eatery Delicatessen (54 Prince St.) has a signature autumnal drink, the Prince Street Cider, that melds all the classic favors: Spiced rum and ginger liqueur are layered on top of an apple cider base, then topped with cinnamon.

With the resumption of diplomatic relations between Havana and Washington, Cuba is poised to become the hottest Caribbean island.

Cuba is only 90 miles from Key West in Florida, but it has been forbidden fruit for Americans for more than 50 years. Most Americans still need authorization to go, and there are as yet no scheduled air or ferry services from the United States, but don't let that put you off. A cruise is an even better way to get a real feel for the island.

Greek company Variety Voyager has cruises between Havana and Cienfuegos that stay two nights in the capital. Cuba Cruise by Celestyal Cruises has seven-night voyages that circumnavigate the island and an alternative embarkation in Montego Bay, Jamaica, which is a much easier access point for Americans.

Here are six things not to miss when you're there:

1 Follow in the footsteps of Ernest Hemingway by visiting his former home, Finca Vigia, 10 miles east of Havana and now a museum (you're not allowed in, but you can peek through the windows). Back in the capital, toast the famed author with a mojito in the Bodeguita del Medio and a daiquiri in the Floridita. They were his favorite drinks and watering holes.

2 A Coco taxi (yellow, round, and great fun) is the only way to travel in Havana — apart from the classic American cars that adorn the roads and also serve as cabs. Remember to agree to a price before starting out.

3 Old Havana has an alluring mix of neoclassical architecture — don't miss the grand El Capitolio, modeled on the Capitol in Washington — and faded elegance. You can learn the art of cigar rolling and rum-making on factory visits, shop for locally made crafts and round off the day at the Tropicana, a colorful Las Vegas-style show of song, dance and skimpy costumes.

4 Trinidad, on the south coast, was built on the proceeds of slavery and sugar and is packed with museums that portray life during colonial times. Cantero Palace on elegant Plaza Mayor is the best choice, but leave time to stroll and admire the city's fabulous colonial architecture.

5 Cemetery Santa Efigenia in Santiago de Cuba is the resting place of Jose Marti, who led Cuba's fight to oust the Spanish in the late 1800s. Every 30 minutes between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., they change the guard at his mausoleum while the Cuban national anthem plays.

6 Cienfuegos was the only Cuban city founded by the French. Make your way to the Parque Jose Marti, which is surrounded by an 1870-built neoclassical cathedral, the grand Teatro Tomas Terry and a mini Arc de Triomphe. INSIGHT GUIDES | JANE ARCHER

Who ya gonna call?

It's the Halloween season, when spirits, ghouls and things that go bump in the night invite living visitors to meet them at haunted sites.

It's not that spirits return only at Halloween — it's that the original solstice celebrations made people more aware of them. Those rituals have since evolved into secular fun. Party stores say Halloween is their busiest season, far outselling St. Patrick's Day, Cinco de Mayo and even New Year's.

At one time, only famous historic locations with obvious connections to ghosts had tours of haunted sites. Now, almost any place that predates electricity claims a paranormal pedigree and schedules guided tours to show off its resident ghouls. Sometimes theatrical with costumed guides and staged "encounters," and sometimes conducted by serious paranormal investigators, the walks mix folklore, history and documented strange occurrences.

Most tours are family-friendly, with just a few spooky chills. A few are very intense with truly frightening stories and ghostly encounters. Some include a paranormal investigation element, which could mean some supernatural guests joining the stroll.

Here are some walks worth taking:

With the history of the witch trials in Salem, Massachusetts (Salem.org), and the carnage of the Battle of Gettysburg (Destinationgettysburg.com), it's no wonder that both towns offer a variety of ghost tours. Their tourism websites have links to all of the ghost walk companies with descriptions of the events.

Red Cloak Haunted Tours (Redcloakhauntedhistorytours.com) has several kid-friendly treks through towns of the central Maine coast, researched and conducted by a local historian and storyteller.

Ft. Delaware (Delawarestateparks.reserveamerica.com), located on an island in the Delaware River, was used as a prison for Confederate soldiers during the Civil War. Conditions were terrible and many of the inmates died. Accessible only by boat, there are several tours available. The Appetite for Apparitions Dinner and Ghost Tour includes dinner at a dockside restaurant, a cruise to the fort and a visit to the more haunted areas of the prison. There are also several paranormal investigation tours.

Another "grub and ghost" night is in Rochester, New York (rochesterghosts.com), with dinner in a haunted house followed by a séance. There's also a cemetery stroll and instruction in using a dowsing rod to detect spirit energy.

Portsmouth's Wicked

Battle of Gettysburg

ALL PHOTOS SHUTTERSTOCK

Haunted Waterfront Tour by Newenglandcuriosities.com is very intense and not for kids. For a different kind of spirit, join their Haunted Pub Tour.

The Appalachian and Blue Ridge mountains are filled with stories from Native American and Celtic lore. Appalachian Ghost Walks (Appalachianghostwalks.com) has a roster of two- to three-hour tours through several historic mountain towns.

With everything from haunted hotels that still cater to guests to sightings of lynching victims,

Maryland's Eastern Shore vibrates with spooky energy. Chesapeake Ghost Walks (Chesapeakeghostwalks.com) visits several cities, parks and resorts every week on tours that combine the region's history with its ghosts.

SELL NOW ON THESE BIG-NAME PLAYERS

Selling low is usually a really bad idea in any kind of investment venture. We will typically show a better return by surviving the bad times and waiting for things to positively progress toward the mean.

But in fantasy football, we don't have a lot of time. Most "regular seasons" are 13 weeks, meaning we need to start getting wins and we need them now. These big names are unlikely to turn their seasons around:

Not so easy Breesy

Drew Brees was in trouble long before his rotator cuff got bruised. The Saints made it clear this offseason that they wanted to change their

Pickups of the week

Who to add for Week 4:

- Karlos Williams, RB, Bills — LeSean McCoy's hamstring injury is proving more serious than anticipated.
- Ty Montgomery, WR, Packers — Jordy Nelson is out for the year and Davante Adams has a high-ankle sprain.

style, dumping Jimmy Graham and Kenny Stills while investing heavily in the running game and the offensive line. Brees' skills are diminishing and when he drops back, he's looking at a 5-foot-10 No. 1 WR in Brandin Cooks, along with Brandon Coleman, Ben Watson and a broken-down Marques Colston. Even when Brees' shoulder gets right, owners are better off looking elsewhere at the quarterback position.

Andre the not-so-giant Andre Johnson was a Texans legend, arguably the greatest player in the history of the franchise. After last season, they simply washed their hands of him despite having one of the thinnest WR depth charts in the league. The Colts are finding out why now, as Johnson is moving like a lumbering tight end instead of an elite receiver. Unable to separate, he's been leaped by Donte Moncrief for No. 2 wide-out. Andrew Luck has a 7.4 rating when throwing at the 34-year-old, something he's done 18 times.

Marshawn Lynch has accumulated just 128 yards on 38 carries so far this season. / GETTY IMAGES

Beasting the wall

There's still plenty of value on the trade market for Marshawn Lynch and owners would do well to explore it. We can't say for sure that he's hit the wall, but we've seen this scene too many times before. A 29-year-old running back with at least 280 carries in four straight seasons can't get over hamstring, calf and back issues. When on the field, he becomes increasingly touchdown-dependent. Meanwhile, the team has new and exciting options in Graham and Tyler Lockett. Lynch is worth moving for 80 cents on the dollar.

Derek Stepan and the Rangers open their 2015-16 season next Wednesday in Chicago. / GETTY IMAGES

Rangers with plenty of big games on slate

NHL. The five must-see games on the Rangers' 2015-16 schedule.

The time is drawing nigh. Next Wednesday night in Chicago, the New York Rangers will begin their 2015-16 campaign inside a packed house at the United Center and a national television audience watching the season opener against the Blackhawks. A team with Cup aspirations, the Rangers will be on TV. A lot. And we have an idea of which games you absolutely have to catch, be it in person, on TV or through a streaming service:

1 Oct. 10 vs. Columbus
The home opener comes 24 hours after the first Blue Jackets-Rangers meeting in Columbus. Assuredly, there will be pomp and circumstance greeting the reigning Presidents' Trophy winners. There will also be a fully healthy Blue Jackets squad that added burgeoning power forward Brandon Saad.

2 Nov. 3 vs. Washington
The first meeting since the Rangers rallied from 3-1 down to eliminate the Capitals in the Metropolitan Division Finals. The Capitals brought in T.J. Oshie and Justin Williams to provide Alex Ovechkin with offensive support.

3 Dec. 2 at NY Islanders
Rangers. Islanders. Need we say more? Well, in this case, yes. This game — an 8 p.m. start for a nationwide television audience — will emanate from the Islanders' new home, Barclays Center. Making it even juicier is that both teams are coming off playoff appearances, and both believe they will be playing hockey in the spring. Oh, did we mention these two teams and their fanbases get along as well as Donald Trump and Jeb Bush?

4 Dec. 11 at Edmonton
New York Rangers, meet Connor McDavid. Connor McDavid, meet the New York Rangers. The first overall pick in last June's draft has been labeled a generational talent, and the best player to come into the NHL since Sidney Crosby. Heady praise. Before the game, the Oilers will honor Rangers President Glen Sather, who was coach and general manager of the five-time Stanley Cup champions.

5 March 13 vs. Pittsburgh
The Penguins will come in with a revamped lineup with Phil Kessel on Crosby's right side. Oh, yeah, the Penguins will still have Crosby, Evgeni Malkin, Kris Letang, Olli Maatta, Marc-Andre Fleury, Patric Hornqvist and friends.
